

Worship: feeding commitment to God

Approaches to worship

- Taizé worship, Mindful Worship and Café Worship are examples of different approaches that are being explored by Methodist churches.
- Different approaches use the elements of worship – music, prayer, reading, reflection – in different ways.
- How best to introduce new approaches as offer them regularly?

Congregations

- Different people may come to different types of service. Messy Church, for example, caters for families.
- Can one church have several different congregations?
- What does it take for a congregation that doesn't meet on Sunday morning – Messy Church, for example – to become fully part of the church?

church

- We say that 'All are welcome.' But are they really?
- Does the way we worship suit some people better than others?
- What would it take for everyone – including people who are neurodiverse, for example – to be welcome?
- What can churches do to show that being different from each other, and yet still children of God, is something to celebrate?
